

Add/Drop Period: Members can request changes in their study group enrollment during two periods: there is an initial two-week add/drop period after member schedules are first released the semester prior and a second three-week add/drop period that opens one week prior to the first day of study groups and closes after the second week of study groups. After the second session of a given study group, there are no changes made to rosters and schedules outside of emergencies or withdrawals. All add/drop requests should be directed to engagement@gc.cuny.edu rather than to the study group coordinators. Graduate Center staff will make the requested changes (to the extent they are possible) to the individual's schedule and to the study group roster; all registration changes will be communicated by the office to the relevant coordinators.
